The start of a megatrend American reshoring

What is reshoring?

Reshoring or onshoring is when firms bring business operations back to their home country. This includes manufacturing, production and jobs

Benefits of reshoring

Reshoring bring significant benefits to firms in terms of newer more automated manufacturing plants, closer to consumers, leading to more resilient production.

Why is America reshoring?

Supply chain disruptions, rising overseas labor costs, persistent quality issues and intellectual theft, are encouraging US companies to move manufacturing back home.

An investment opportunity?

This multi-year trend benefits not only the firms reshoring but those helping to make it happen. We believe these reshoring companies are likely to have higher growth and a stronger competitive position.

How it all started

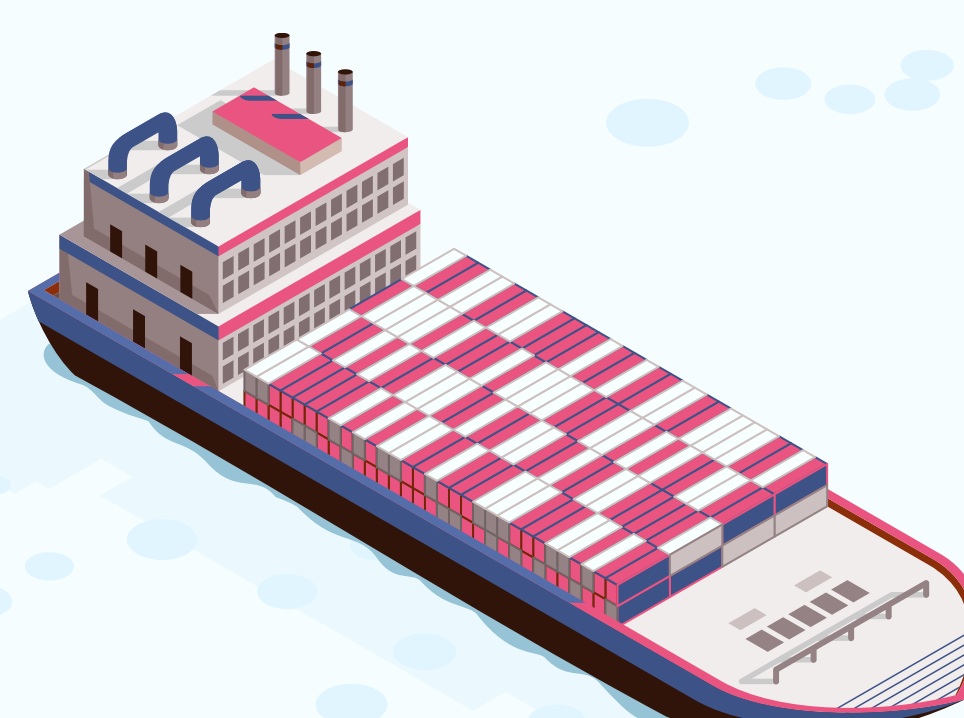

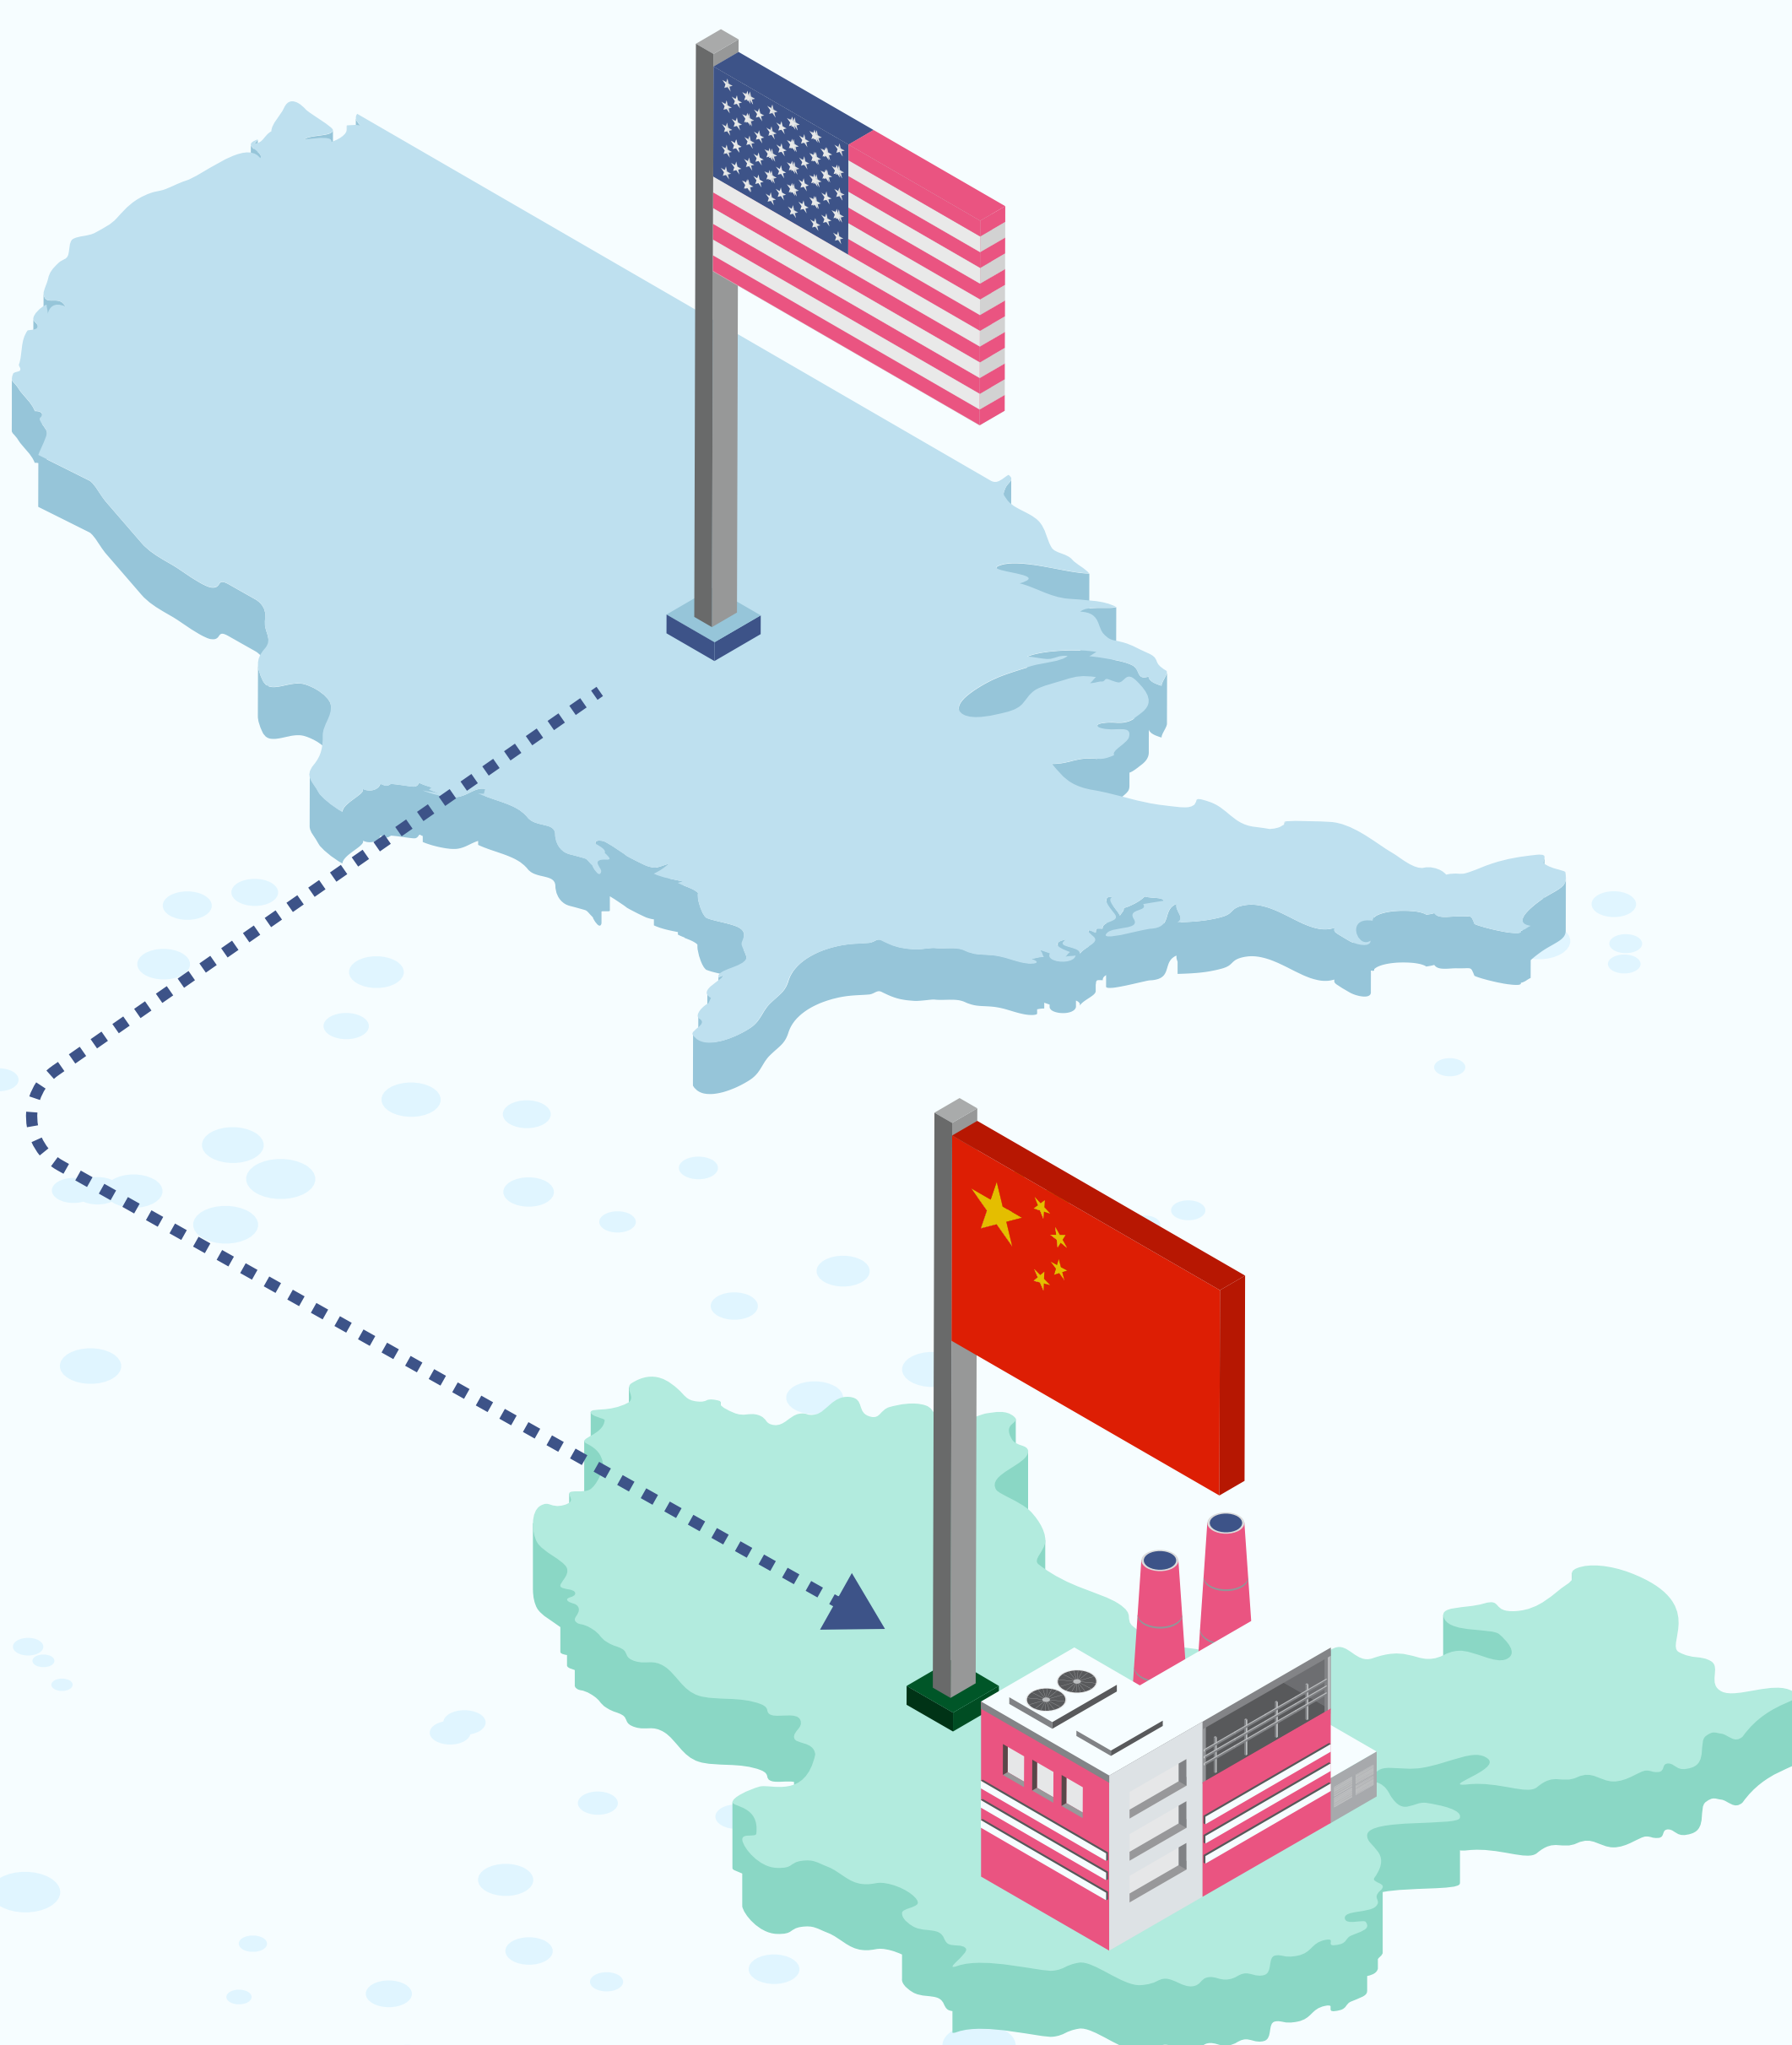

The drive to maintain high profits often leads to cost-cutting strategies

It all started with Offshoring

Offshoring is the practice of relocating business operations to foreign countries. It began in the 1960s, as U.S. companies moved production to less developed countries.

Offshoring companies benefited from lower costs, increased profits, and access to new markets.

Hosting nations benefited through job creation, economic growth, technology transfer, increased trade and access to foreign investment.

Risk Information

Before investing carefully consider the Fund’s investment objective, risks, charges, and expenses contained in the prospectus available at www.temaetfs.com. Read carefully before investing.

Investing involves risk including possible loss of principal. There is no guarantee the adviser’s investment strategy will be successful.

Sector Focus Risk: The Fund may invest a significant portion of its assets in one or more sectors, including Industrials, Materials and Utilities, and thus will be more susceptible to the risks affecting those sectors than funds that have more diversified holdings across several sectors.

The success of the Fund’s investment strategy depends in part on the ability of the companies in which it invests to reshore or onshore services to the United States. Companies may face significant legal, financial and political headwinds in the reshoring or onshoring of jobs into the United States, and these factors may be detrimental to performance. Industrial and Utilities sector companies will likewise be subject to the risks of Government regulation, world events, exchange rates and economic conditions, technological developments and liabilities for environmental damage and general civil liabilities. In addition, many materials companies are significantly affected by the level and volatility of commodity prices, exchange rates, import controls, worldwide competition, environmental policies and consumer demand.

Investing in Foreign and emerging markets involves risks relating to political, economic, or regulatory conditions not associated with investments in U.S. securities and instruments. In addition, the fund is exposed to currency risk.
